DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

2. Claim 115 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention.

- a. Limitation “c)” of the sole claim sets forth a monocrystalline metal oxide and/or metal nitride layer overlying the amorphous layer. The specification has set forth that the accommodating buffer layer may be composed of various materials: notably strontium titanate (or STO, “a metal oxide”), but also other materials including gallium nitride (“a metal nitride). As such the specification does provide written description for this limitation. The specification further enables how to actually grow the STO on the Si substrate with the a-SiOx interface layer interposed therebetween, but provides no disclosure whatsoever of how to grow GaN or any other metal nitrides on the a-SiOx buffered SI substrate.

- b. This is relevant because GaN has a crystalline structure that differs greatly from that of STO and silicon. As explained in the specification, STO and other mentioned perovskite oxides have a cubic crystalline structure that rotates 45 degrees relative to the cubic Si substrate. In contradistinction, GaN has a wurtzite or hexagonal crystal structure and a significant lattice mismatch to silicon. The specification provides no explanation of what methods or conditions are employed to grow GaN on Si. Further, this specific task has been a long-sought industry goal with only marginal success at best. As such, the specification cannot be said to reasonably enable one skilled in the art as to how to make GaN on Si as set forth in the claim.

Double Patenting

3. The double patenting rejections are repeated, but held in abeyance.

Conclusion

4. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
